Young Film Maker of Mann and Short Film Competition 2010 - Arts Council Press Release

This summer sees the return of the Arts Council's two film competitions, Young Filmmaker of Mann and the Short Film Competition.

Young Filmmaker of Mann is now in its seventh year and has become an established outlet for young Manx filmmakers to showcase their talent. Entrants must be under the age of 23. The Short Film Competition was introduced in 2007 as part of the Isle of Man Film Festival (now in its fourth year) and will be running once again for anyone who is resident in the Isle of Man, of Manx descent or whose films have a Manx theme.

Individuals and groups can apply for both competitions and the categories are: comedy, drama, documentary, experimental, music video and animation. Category winners will be awarded £100 and competition winners will receive trophies and £200 each.

Short listed entries will be screened in a showcase event at the Manx Museum on Saturday 11th September as part of the Film Festival.

Hon David Cretney MHK, Minister for Community, Culture and Leisure said "Film and media continue to be a passion for young people, offering instant chances for expression via mediums such as You Tube and personal websites. Judging by previous years' competitions, film making by young people is prolific on the Island and it's always a pleasure to see the large number of entries we receive."

The judging panel for this year's competitions will include local film producer Charles Guard and Rob Hurdman a Director of Greenlight Television as well as Arts Council members. The closing date for entries into both competitions is Wednesday 18th August. Entry forms can be obtained from the Isle of Man Arts Council on 694598, or email iomartscouncil@dtl.gov.im and via our website www.iomarts.com

Video Highlights

The Islands of The Bahamas shine in New Line Cinema's After the Sunset.

The high-stakes action-comedy After the Sunset begins where most heist movies end-with a pair of master thieves escaping to a tropical paradise in The Bahamas to enjoy the spoils of their labor.

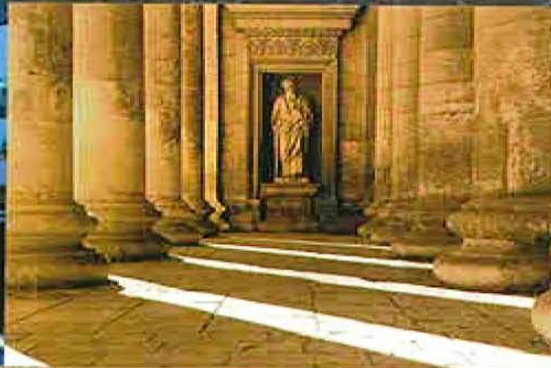

After the Sunset was shot on location at Atlantis, Paradise Island and in Nassau, Bahamas; the beauty of the destination is featured throughout the movie. Directed by Brett Ratner, the film features Pierce Brosnan, Salma Hayek, Woody Harrelson, as well as Don Cheadle and Naomie Harris.

After the Sunset opens in theaters nationwide on November 12, 2004.

Highlights of the 2008 Georgia Entertainment Industry Investment Act

- Previous multi-part, tier incentive is now 20% flat tax credit on qualified production expenditures.
- The foundation of the Act is a 20% investment tax credit. Productions that spend a minimum of $500,000 in the state on qualified production expenditures in a single year are eligible for this credit. The 20% credit applies to most materials, services and labor. The 20% credit applies to out-of-town hires working in Georgia with a salary cap of $5,000 per production, when the employee is paid by "salary," which is reported by W2. If the production company uses a 1099 or a personal service contract, someone this limit does not apply.

Un territoire naturel

Grandeur des paysages naturels, splendeur des espaces vierges, lacs immenses, glaciers majestueux, sommets enneigés, sans oublier un passé exceptionnel, font du Yukon un territoire plein de belles surprises.

En 1896, sur le bord d'un ruisseau non loin de la rivière Klondike, un cri s'éleva : « de l'or, de l'or ». La découverte d'un filon aurifère à Bonanza Creek déclancha ainsi la plus grande ruée vers l'or de tous les temps. Whitehorse, devenue la capitale du Yukon en 1953, n'était alors qu'une halte sur le long périple qui menait les chercheurs de Skagway en Alaska, jusqu'au gisement situé près de Dawson City au nord du Yukon. Les transports maritimes et ferroviaires construits à cette époque, firent de Whitehorse la plus grande ville du nord canadien. La capitale se souvient encore de son heure de gloire ; un authentique bateau à aube a été restauré et les bars de la ville ont recréé l'atmosphère du siècle dernier avec spectacles de vaudeville, chansons folkloriques et danseuses de french cancan. Et il ne faut pas quitter Whitehorse sans voir le Canyon Miles où les chercheurs d'or devaient s'arrêter pour contourner les rapides sur le fleuve.

Mais c'est la petite ville de Dawson qui fut le cœur du Klondike. Modeste poste de traite situé dans une plaine au confluent de la rivière Klondike et du fleuve Yukon, elle compta, au plus fort de la ruée vers l'or (1898-1899), une population évaluée entre 20 000 et 30 000.

The 'Eat Pray Love' real world travel destinations

In honor of Julia Roberts' new film "Eat Pray Love," based on Elizabeth Gilbert's best-selling memoir, we look at the locations her character visits: Italy, India and Bali.

Bali

In the film, Julia Roberts plays Elizabeth Gilbert, a journalist who leaves her drab life in New York and goes on a journey of self-discovery. Her first stop is Italy, where Gilbert finds the people embrace "dolce far niente" or "the joy of doing nothing," says writer Mary Beth Sheridan.

After visiting Rome, Gilbert travels to India to explore her spirituality and ends her journey in Bali, pictured.

Stockholm in Millennium thrillers' footsteps

Are you a fan of Stieg Larsson's fiction trilogy about journalist Mikael Blomkvist and computer hacker Lisbeth Salander? Experience Stockholm from the characters' perspective – with a little imagination, it will feel like you are part of the suspenseful mystery as the plot unfolds. Guided tours are available, but you are welcome to explore the settings on your own.

Larsson's trilogy has become a huge success. The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo, The Girl Who Played with Fire, and The Girl Who Kicked the Hornets' Nest have sold millions of copies worldwide and have been made into feature films. Since then, masses of Stieg Larsson fans have been making their way to Stockholm to see the settings where the stories take place.

There is more than one way to experience the city from a Millennium Trilogy perspective. One is to go on the Stockholm City Museum's popular and award-winning Stieg Larsson Millennium Tour. The walking tour is spiced with factual information and intriguing stories that tie the real Stockholm with its fictional counterpart.

Another possibility, which costs a little less, is to buy a Millennium Map at the City Museum and visit the addresses on your own. There is more information about the map below.

Interpretation is important

"Gandalf! Gollum has been seen!"

"Quiet and still, please. Quiet and still!" The woman's voice rings out through the bush of Kaitoke, and suddenly the only sounds to be heard are cicadas, the gentle breeze in the trees, and the splashing of a near-by waterfall in the dappled sunlight.

Gandalf the Grey, in serious thought, emerges from inside the Last Homely House. As he reaches the silent ancient stone steps, Elrond hastens up to him.

"Gandalf! Gollum has been seen!"

The wizard pauses for a moment, then turns to Elrond, his eyes clouded over with concern. "Speak nothing of this."

Together the pair descend in silence to the waiting Fellowship in the leafy glade below.

"Cut!"

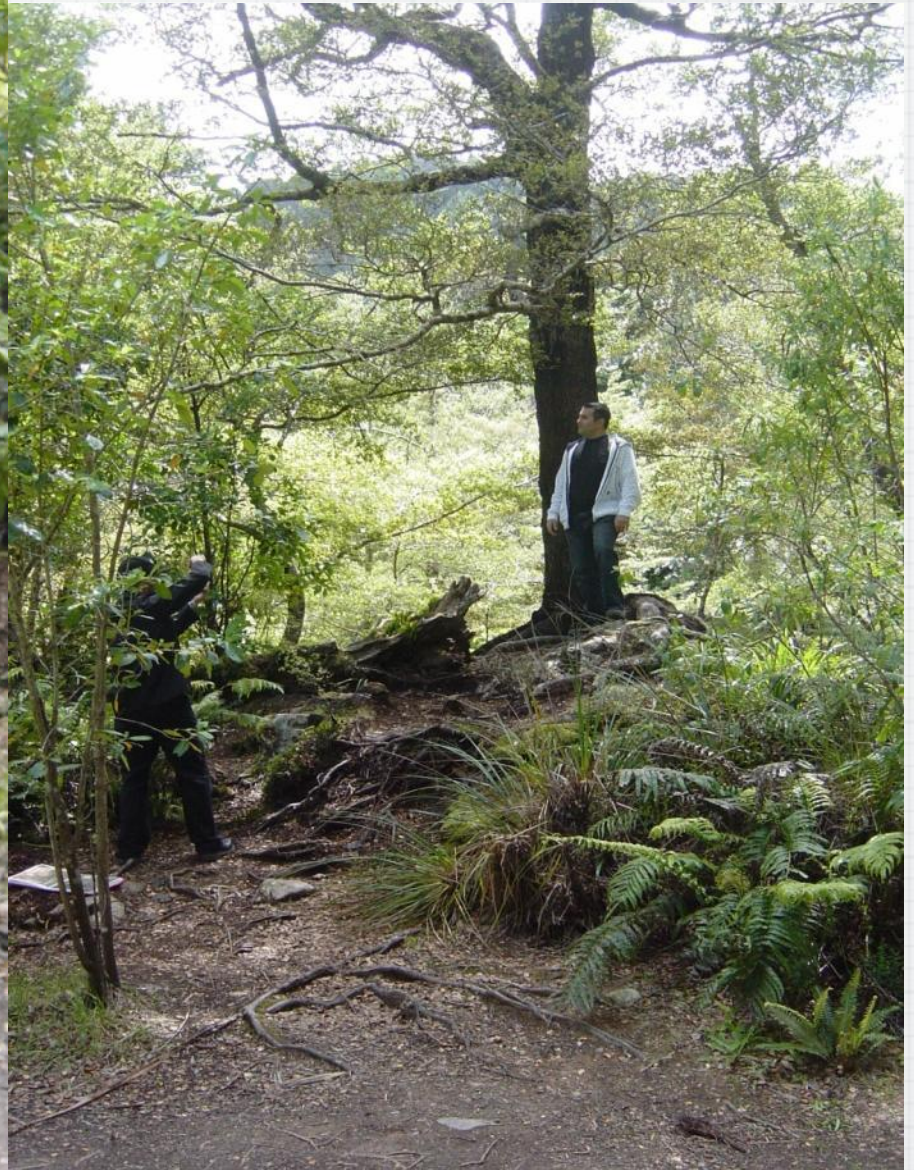

Suddenly the crew and other waiting cast members who'd been holding their breath burst into activity as make-up artists, wardrobe people, technicians, and a myriad of others on the Lord of the Rings set leap into action.

The scene now in the can was from the first film of the Rings trilogy, with this small area of Kaitoke Regional Park becoming the magical Elven valley of Rivendell, a last sanctuary before the Fellowship of the Ring sets out on the most dangerous part of their quest. In this very area a stream bubbled through ferns, and 'stone' walls and staircases, complete with 'lichen', surrounded an idyllic glade. Myriad 'stone' buildings and an archway were carefully built into the trees, and the effect was completed with 'autumn leaves' hung from tall trees and an array of 'stone' statues.

It took over three months to construct the Rivendell set, and although Kaitoke's noisy summer cicadas may not be suited to Middle Earth, by the time you see the film, the sounds of Rivendell will be nothing but the wind in the trees, the babbling of water and the sound of beautiful birds.

Thanks to New Line Cinema and Three First Six Limited for the use of the Rivendell photographs.

Directed by Walter Salles (Central Station) and starring Gael García Bernal (Amores Perros, Y Tu Mamá También, Bad Education) as the young Che, it's sure to be a big hit in the UK.

SWEDEN

The creepy serial-killer aspects of the film Girl with the Dragon Tattoo, in theaters this month, won't leave you itching to get marooned on a Swedish island, but its icy landscapes and pure-as-day summer lake scenes might. Shot in Gnesta, about 30 miles outside Stockholm, the flick stays true to Stieg Larsson's posthumous cold case crime novel featuring a journalist and a badass computer hacker who sleuth around the fictional isle of Hedeby. For Nordic isolation just as pristine—but less pernicious—hit up the new ski-lodge-style FJÄLLNÄS, in the Swedish highlands (46-684-230-30; doubles, $109–$392).

Baby, you can ride my bike: A scene from Girl with the Dragon Tattoo.

Soap to lure Japanese Down Under

By Nick Squires

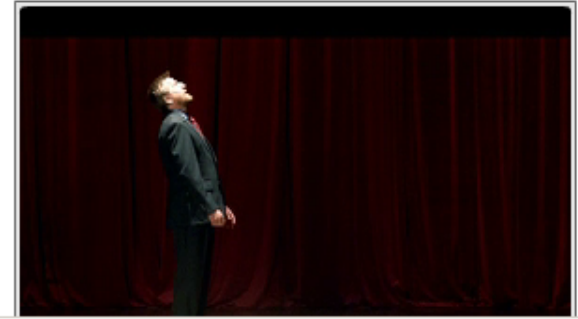

Last Updated: 1:09am BST 21/05/2007

Having lured hundreds of thousands of Poms Down Under through the hammy acting and tortured scripts of Neighbours and Home and Away, Australia now hopes to do the same with Japanese tourists.

The government has announced plans to make a Japanese soap opera in Japanese with Japanese actors, to be filmed at locations around the country such as Ayers Rock and the Great Barrier Reef.

"We've got to make Australia a hot destination again for Japanese tourists," said tourism minister Fran Bailey.

"So, after sounding out a number of industry people, what I'd like to do is to make a Japanese soapie starring Japanese actors, but set in Australia and travelling around and having them experience a lot of our iconic tourist attractions."

The Japanese tourist market is estimated to be worth around £800 million, but there has recently been a nine per cent drop in numbers.
